THE PEOPLE'S PAPER. —THE— DAILY HERALD.

SALT LAKE DAILY HERALD.

The remarkable success of the paper in the past, as manifested by its large and steadily growing subscription list, its increasing advertising patronage and the expressions of goodwill towards the journal which greet us from all quarters, convinces the publishers that they are doing what they set out to do—namely, furnish a newspaper that the people would like, and therefore support. The HERALD, as in the past, will be the people's paper. Independent in a political sense, it will always be found on the side of the people, outspoken on questions affecting the rights of the masses; battling for local self-government and the largest liberty to individuals consistent with public good; laboring for a pure, honest and economical administration of government; treating public matters dispassionately and employing language calculated to enlighten the reason of men rather than influence their passions. Progress and improvement and the development of the resources of the territory, instead of trying to create strife and retard progress. With our increased facilities for gathering news, both by telegraph and mail, the employment of a large number of correspondents in different sections of the country, and the better arrangement of all the many details of the establishment, we confidently promise to make the SALT LAKE DAILY HERALD a better paper than ever.

SALT LAKE SEMI-WEEKLY HERALD

This valuable and popular edition of the HERALD will continue to make its appearance twice a week during the year, and the same degree of progress and improvement and the development of the resources of the territory, instead of trying to create strife and retard progress. With our increased facilities for gathering news, both by telegraph and mail, the employment of a large number of correspondents in different sections of the country, and the better arrangement of all the many details of the establishment, we confidently promise to make the SALT LAKE DAILY HERALD a better paper than ever.

SALT LAKE WEEKLY HERALD.

The demand for a WEEKLY HERALD has been very pressing during the past two or three years. The aim of the publishers will be to furnish a paper for those people who live off the main line of travel and who are not accommodated with mail service often than once a week; to provide a newspaper for those who have only one day a week of leisure to devote to the pleasant and profitable employment of reading; to supply a suitable edition of the HERALD for sending abroad—a paper that shall faithfully and honestly represent this great and growing territory, with its many and important industries and its history, entertaining properly to make a paper for the home circle and family circle, one that shall contain the news, and at the same time combine the essential elements of a literary, educational and interesting journal. In fact, our aim will be to make the WEEKLY HERALD a welcome visitor to the home, where it will be found a constant fund of instruction, entertainment and profit, to all members of the family. It will contain the leading characteristics of the Daily, the Weekly will contain matter specially for the agriculturist, the gardener, the stock-raiser, the mechanic, the kitchen and the house hold generally, and an important feature of its columns will be the well-written, entertaining and moral literature, also reports of the Tabernacle discourses. Nothing will be admitted to its columns that has not first been carefully prepared and revised.

THAT KISS.

She was busy at the wash-tub. The dirty clothes were washing. Slathering soap with her hands. And in the water sloshing.

She rubbed, and turned, and twisted them. And got them in a muddle. Then, lightning-like, hopped up and down. Like a lame duck in a puddle.

Then turned them over, inside out. In her face the color brightening. Slathering more soap on her hands. Again she hopped like lightning.

Shoulder-high her arms were bare. Her dress pinned up around her. And such a head of frothy hair. As her's was when I found her!

Her neck and shoulders, O, so fair! Her waist, O, Juliet! Gave me such a thrill that I could stand no more. For privilege to squeeze her.

Her smile was like a rich bouquet. When gentle zephyrs fanned it. And when she glanced her eyes this way and that. I could stand no more.

Her rippling laugh, like "electric shock." To please nearly tore me. 'Twas then I took her by the ear. And swung her 'round before me.

Her cherry lips were puckered up. Like for something they were thirsting. They looked like a burst cherry pie. Or like a ripe rose bursting.

O, blissful job! what a scene it was! Such landscape never was painted! I threw my arms about her neck. And kissed her—then I fainted.

EAST JORDAN CANAL.

The Directors Think they Have Not Been Properly Treated by the City Council.

SOUTH COTTONWOOD, April 23, 1880.

Editors Herald:

Inasmuch as the election to decide whether Salt Lake City shall borrow money to construct a canal has been held, and this explanation can now make it difference as to the result, we feel that justice to the East Jordan Canal Company requires a full statement of the offer that was made to the City Council committee, inasmuch as a great many of the residents of Salt Lake City, and the directors of the East Jordan Canal Company for not giving the city a fair chance to unite with them in the construction of a canal, large enough for all parties concerned.

When the City Council requested Joseph S. Rawlins, the president of the company, to let them know upon what terms they could unite with us, he immediately called a stockholders' meeting and laid the matter before them. At said meeting, there was a committee of five appointed to negotiate with the City Council, with instructions that the company was willing to let the city have a one-third interest in the canal, by them paying one-third of the cost of construction. The said committee met with the Council committee, and made them the above offer, but the committee did not think they would be justified in expending much money for only a one-third interest in the canal. The meeting then adjourned for one week, to give the canal committee a chance to call a full meeting of their board of directors to consider the propriety of giving the city a one-half interest in the canal.

In one week from that time the directors of the East Jordan Canal Company met at the City Hall at 10 a. m. At this meeting it was decided unanimously that we would not be justified in letting the city have more than a one-third interest, as we thought we had from five to six times as much land as the city had. In the same day, at 2 p. m., we again met with the City Council committee, and made them the above offer, but the committee did not feel to accept the proposition, as they claimed that they wished to own one-half of the capital stock of the company.

After being together about two hours the committee asked if we would be willing to let them have a one-half interest, providing they would petition the county court of Salt Lake County for a grant of one-fourth of more of the waters of the Jordan to put with our grant of one-fourth of the Jordan, which would then make the two companies a grant for three-eighths of the water of the Jordan River. We understood the proposition to be that the city should have a one-half representation in the board of officers. When we adjourned at this time all parties seemed to be well satisfied with the proposition, and the Council committee promised to petition the county court immediately for the extra grant of the Jordan.

It was less than one week from this time the City Council had the surveyors locating the route of their canal, and in the meantime they had changed their minds about uniting with us (we have they up to the present time), which certainly made us think if we had treated them in the same manner, they would have thought we had treated them very considerately.

It was also agreed to finish up the canal at its present site, to be sure that it would be a success; but if there was not water enough we would turn out the water and enlarge the canal where it was thought expedient and necessary.

If any person or persons think the above are the facts in the case, we are willing to have a meeting with the City Council, as we think we can furnish plenty of proof to sustain the above statement.

AGRICULTURAL.

Studying a Plan of the Barn.—To begin with, the interior arrangement of the barn will depend much upon the purposes for which it is intended. This is—whether it is to be occupied chiefly for milch cows, whether an apartment is to be set aside for sheep, another as stall for horses, whether it has a cellar or not, or whether there is a dairy, barn or shed, by itself in another part of the yard, and a separate stable for the work and driving horses. Where sheep husbandry is made a specialty of the farm, good and ample quarters will be needed either in the barn, cellar or a separate building. Many also like to have a stable for the horses nearer the house than the barn frequently is, both for convenience and pleasure. Where the barn combines all these accommodations, however, there is much study and planning in order to have every part convenient. We venture a few suggestions covering some of the requirements of a "handy" barn. By all means, have a cellar under the whole barn. Generally a location may be found at not too great a cost in the highest of the cattle during the summer night. Or, possibly, a permanent steep for cows may be placed on the ground floor. A root cellar can also occupy a portion of the barn, and should be built in one corner, commanding the water from the roof and securing provision for plenty of water for winter purposes of the stock, either in the yard or steep. Frequently, where a cellar is not wanted, the main bay may be dropped a few feet below the catling-in floor, so that the top of mows greatly increased. Scaffolding should be built in one corner, commanding the water from the roof and securing provision for plenty of water for winter purposes of the stock, either in the yard or steep.
